B. Read Meet the Camel and select the correct answers

Camels are mammals with humps on their backs. There are different types of camels. African camels have two humps on their backs. But the dromedary camel has one hump.

Camels live in Africa and Asia. They live in the rocky desert. It is very hard to live in the desert because it's hot and dry at the same time. The wind blows sand and ice at them. Luckily, they can close their nose holes. They also have long eyelashes to protect their eyes.

Camels live in groups. Camels eat most desert plants including thorns. But they can survive a lot of time without food or water because of their humps.
