Reading part 3: text multiple choice questions

HYPNOTISM

We have all seen those cartoons where the crazy scientists hypnotize someone with a swinging watch and their eyes become strange and they do anything the scientist tells them to do. But that's not how hypnotism really works. Doctors now use hypnotism to help people with problems, like giving up smoking.

Franz Mesmer, an Austrian scientist, first introduced the idea of hypnotism. He believed that a hypnotist had special powers that could be used to control other people. This effect was called mesmerism. Early ideas about magicians, swinging watches, and hypnotism probably came from him, because he had a very active imagination, and he saw himself as a magician.

Today, scientists see hypnotism in a different way. They think it's a natural state of deep focus and relaxation. During hypnosis, someone shuts out other things, focusing intently only on one thing. When we read a book, watch a movie, or drive a car, we're in a sort of hypnosis, because we concentrate strongly on that activity.

During hypnosis, people are usually more relaxed and more creative. It is also very easy to convince them to do something. That means, they are more open to ideas and requests, but only if they are happy with the requests. The mind avoids all other things and the person can focus completely on what the scientist is asking them to do.

Doctors use hypnosis to help people deal with pain, or if they have had an accident. Women have used it while having their babies, to help them to control the pain. People have found that it helps to stop bad habits, such as smoking, or to get a better night's sleep.

There are a lot of ideas about hypnotism which are not correct. Some people think you can get a person to do anything when they are hypnotized, but that is not true. During hypnosis, people are more willing to listen and respond to ideas, but they still have control over their actions. They won't do something that they really don't want to do, because their brain will not let them be controlled.

Reading part 4: choose the correct sentence to put in the gaps

The Trojan War

The Trojan War was a famous war that was fought because prince Paris of Troy took Queen Helen, the wife of the king of Sparta in Greece, back to Troy with him, because they were in love. When the Spartan king found this out, he demanded that Queen Helen return to Greece.

1_____

So, he sent his army to fight the Trojans to get her back.

Troy was very powerful and it had a wall that went all around the city so that invaders could not attack the houses inside. If someone came up to the wall, the Trojan army used to shoot arrows at them. They felt very safe behind their wall.

(2_____

That's why they were not afraid when the Greek army arrived.

The Greeks had wanted to invade Troy for many years, but this was impossible because of the wall. Now, trying to get Helen back, they faced this impossible wall again, when one of the Greek generals had a brilliant idea. He realized how he could trick the Trojans to let them into the city.

(3_____

Then they could fight them and get Helen back.

He told his men to build a huge horse made of wood, but empty inside. The horse was very beautiful and very heavy. Then he told some of his soldiers to hide inside, and the rest of the army pretended to give up and leave. The trojans thought they had won and took the beautiful horse into their city.

(4 _____)

The Greeks hid quietly inside the horse.

Later that night, when everyone was sleeping, the Greek soldiers who had been hiding, came out and opened the city gates to let their army into Troy.

(5 _____)

The Greeks killed all the enemy soldiers and won the battle of Troy. The Trojan horse became famous for being a very clever trick.

Reading part 6: read and write words in the gaps

Book Review

"Join Me" by Helen Wheeler and Jackie Townsend

When I first heard that my two favorite authors were going to write a book together, I was really excited. Now I have read the book, and although I found it enjoyable to read, I think that of the authors writes better on her own.

The story was a young woman who hires a man to become her boyfriend in order to get her dream job. She did this after finding out that the boss preferred to hire people were married or in a relationship as he considered them reliable. But to be honest, I found the situation rather unbelievable, as I don't think bosses can select employees that way these days. I tell you what happened as that would spoil the story for you. I'll just say that I was reading the book, I predicted what would happen. However, my prediction was wrong, and the ending was a pleasant surprise.
