Text A:

Fish and chips is a hot English meal, consisting of fish, usually cod or haddock from the Atlantic Ocean, and deep-fried chips as a side dish. It was first served in England in the 16th century. The dish became popular in the 19th century. The first chip-shop stood in Tommyfield Market in London. It is a popular take-away food in the UK and its cheap take-away price is usually between four and eight pounds. Many restaurants and bars in the UK serve fish and chips.

Text B:

You can easily make the perfect fish and chips at home. You can use any type of fish you like, but make sure you use fresh fish and fresh oil. For the chips, you can use fresh or frozen potatoes. As a side dish, some people choose peas and not potatoes. Mix together flour, milk, salt and pepper. Cover the fish with the mixture and fry them in a frying pan until the fish is golden brown. When you finish frying your tasty fish and chips, serve them on a hot plate and put some salt and lemon on top.

Text C:

In Britain the most famous fish and chip shops are those belonging to the chain called Harry Ramsden's. Ramsden set up his first fish and chip shop in 1928, wanting to provide high quality fish and chips. Today, there are over forty shops around Britain, and many customers visit his restaurants for their main Saturday or Sunday lunchtime meal. Even today Ramsden's secret of how he prepares his fish and chips is not known outside the business. Harry Ramsden's is Britain's longest established restaurant chain.

Task Three: Multiple-Choice Reading (15 minutes) – Questions 14-20

You will read a letter from Emily to her friend.

- Read the following text.
- Answer the multiple-choice questions and choose the correct answer: A, B, or C.
- Place a [X] in the appropriate box on your Answer Sheet.

Hi Emily

I'm really sorry but don't have time to visit you so I'm writing this email instead. Last night I went to the cinema and saw a great film. You can also read the book – and I heard on the radio that it's a true story. It's about a family with three children, two boys and a girl, who lived in a village in India. The children went to school there and had lots of friends. When the children grew up, they started thinking about moving abroad. The sister went to France to become a teacher. The older brother went to America to open a restaurant, only the younger brother stayed in their home country and worked on his father's farm. He worked really hard but he was happy.

When they grew up, they all got married and had lots of children. The film shows us the good and sad times the three families had and how the brothers and sister didn't see each other for ages. Their children, who were cousins never met when they were little. Many years later, when the sister became a grandmother, she decided to see her brothers again and meet their wives and children, so she invited them all to her big house in France.

I'm not going to tell you what happens in the end because I want you to see it yourself. I also have the book, I'm reading it now, but I think the film is better. I would like to see it again so you can come with me and my sister on Saturday. I'm sure you will love it when you see it. It's a little bit sad, but not all the time. Sometimes I laughed and sometimes I cried, but I can't say if the film is funny or sad.

I hope to see you next week. Talk soon.

Love,
Rachel
