READING

Perhaps the most famous writer of crime fiction in the world was Agatha Christie. Her little Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot, is quite an unforgettable character. Poirot first appeared in 1920 in the book The Mysterious Affair at Styles, and then continued to solve crimes in 33 novels, one play and 50 short stories before he died in the book Curtain in 1975. Poirot is memorable for his appearance and he was very vain. He wore smart, fashionable clothes that didn't always look good on his shape and height – he was only one metre 62 centimetres tall and quite overweight. People often compare Poirot with Sherlock Holmes, but their methods of solving crime weren't the same. Holmes was always analysing tiny pieces of evidence.

Poirot preferred to look at the psychology of people to find out why people committed crimes. Although Curtain, Christie's final novel about Poirot, was published in 1975, Christie actually wrote the book almost 40 years earlier. She kept the book in a bank, but didn't publish it until just before her own death in 1976. Today, Poirot is well known to millions of people worldwide because of the TV adaptations of the stories.

Another famous detective is Inspector Morse. However, most people know Morse because of the television programme and not the original books by Colin Dexter. Morse was a well-educated man, but he failed at university. He was concerned about spelling and grammar and always corrected mistakes in the police paperwork. Morse was a very intelligent detective and often relied on instinct and memory to solve many of his cases. Unfortunately, his relationships with colleagues weren't very successful. Morse was always a little sad and didn't make friends easily. Dexter published his first book with Morse in 1975 and the detective finally died 24 years later in 1999 after 13 books. They filmed all the books for the TV series, and there were 33 different episodes on TV between 1987 and 2000.
