Rick Hoyt is American. He has a good job at the University of Boston. Rick is in a wheelchair because he's got cerebral palsy. Rick can't talk so he uses a computer to talk to people. He also loves sport and he takes part in triathlons.

In the-triathlon, people swim four kilometres, cycle 180 kilometres and run 42.kilometres. Rick can't run, cycle or swim because he's in a wheelchair. So how can he take part in a triathlon?

Rick can take part because he does it with his father, Dick Hoyt. In the running, his father pushes him in his wheelchair. In the swimming, Rick lies in a small boat and his father swims and pulls him and in the cycling, Rick sits in a special seat on the front of his father's bike.

Of course, the Hoyts never win the race. The winner of a triathlon usually finishes in about nine hours. The Hoyts always take about 15 hours. "That's right," says Dick. "We never win but Rick and I think that we always win."
