Art is more than a painting

When we think of art, we often imagine a [1] _____ – someone who sits in a [2] _____ – creating a painting and then showing it to people at a city [3] _____ together with paintings by other people. But there are some unusual artists who do very different things. There's Erika Iris Simmons, whose [4] _____ are famous musicians. She creates images of them using the thin, brown tape from the musicians' cassette (those things people used to listen to before CDs and MP3s). Then, there's Salavat Fidai, whose [5] _____ of art are made from a pencil, but they're not [6] _____ made with a pencil. The pencil is the art. Fidai first makes a [7] _____ of something or someone. He then uses a knife to cut the end of a pencil into the same shape. The person or thing is tiny, but perfect! And then there's Brian Dettmer, who uses a knife on old books and turns them into something new. So, there are many different ways of creating art and many different [8] _____ to enjoy.
