The Dead Sea.

Deep in a valley that borders Jordan and Israel is a sea like no other in the world. The Dead Sea is the lowest point on earth with its shores and water surface at 423 metres below sea level. The Dead Sea is also the saltiest place on earth. The amount of water that evaporates from the sea is far greater than the water that flows into the sea. The evaporated water leaves behind large amounts of salt making the Dead Sea six times saltier than the oceans. Shiny white crystals of salt cover the shores of this amazing sea giving it a snow-covered effect. Because of this high salt concentration, no fish or marine life can live in the water and this is why people call it the Dead Sea. If a fish accidently swims into the Dead Sea from one of the rivers that flow into it, it dies instantly. People, however, can swim in the Dead Sea. Well, they don't actually swim, they float. The large amount of salt in the water makes it very dense meaning bodies float with no effort. This is the only place in the world where one can lie down on the water and read a book! The high salt content also gives the water healing properties.

Ivan McLean, who lives in Portland, Oregon USA, has come up with a fabulous way to use old street signs; he makes rubbish bins out of them. McLean got the idea from a close friend who recycled commercial signs.

Not only is McLean's art useful but it will help brighten up the community as well. This is because McLean uses an assortment of 1) _____ (COLOUR) signs to make each bin. Onlookers, who saw McLean's first bin, couldn't help but admire his creation. As for McLean, he is 3) _____ (THRILL) that he is helping out the city. He also likes the fact that his glow in the dark bins are going to be put next to pedestrian crosswalks.
