Doctors say that exercise is good for you, but it shouldn't hurt. You don't want to have an accident or injury when you exercise. Here are some tips:

- Wear the right shoes. Your feet support your whole body.
- Drink a lot of water when you exercise. But don't eat for an hour before you exercise. Food and exercise don't go together.
- Slow down or stop if you feel bad. You should be able to talk and have a conversation when you exercise.
- Look where you are walking or running. You don't want to fall.
- Exercise with a friend. If you have a problem, your friend can help.

Example: Exercise is NOT good for you when it

[a]. hurts you. b. makes you tired. c. makes you thirsty.

28. What supports your whole body?

a. your legs b. your shoes c. your feet

29 What should you be able to do while you exercise?

a. be with a friend b. talk to a friend c. breathe hard

30. If you don't look where you're running, you might

a. hurt yourself. b. get lost. c. breathe too hard.
