Listen and look. There is one example.

[pause]

Boy: Mum, did you have a pet when you were young?

Woman: Yes. Why?

Boy: Because we have to write about pets for homework.

Woman: Well, when I was about five, my father found a rabbit.

Boy: And was that your pet, Mum?

Woman: Yes, but all the family loved it.

[pause]

Can you see the answer? Now you listen and write.

[pause]

Boy: Where did your dad find the rabbit?

Woman: Well, he went camping with my brother one weekend and he found the rabbit in their tent.

Boy: And didn't it hop away?

Woman: No, it didn't.

Boy: And did your rabbit have a name? Can you remember it?

Woman: Oh, yes, because I chose it. We called it Horris.

Boy: That's a strange name. How do you spell it?

Woman: H-O-R-R-I-S. It was the name of a rabbit in a television programme.

Boy: Oh. And did you give it grass to eat?

Woman: Well, it ate grass, but we gave it vegetables. Rabbits like those best.

Boy: Oh, yes. And what colour was it?

Woman: It was brown and it had very long ears and a soft coat. It was very good at jumping!

Boy: And where did it live? In your bedroom?

Woman: No, in the garden. Rabbits don't like living inside.

Boy: And did you often play with it?

Woman: Oh, yes. Every day!

Boy: Well, perhaps one day we could have a rabbit too!

Woman: Hmmmm.
