Birds near airports can be very dangerous. It's difficult for the pilot to land the plane when there are birds near the airport. Airport workers can use a model plane to scare the birds. But some airports give people a special job—as human scarecrows. When there are birds, the people who work in the airport call the human scarecrows, who drive to the runway. They make a loud noise and the birds fly away. This way, the pilot can land the plane safely.
