1 Listen to the sentences. Is going to pronounced in the full form or the reduced form (gonna)? Circle the correct answer. First, listen to the examples.

Examples

But my mom said, "____ have another child."

a. I am not going to

b. I'm not gonna

Today, ____ talk about only children.

a. we are going to

b. we're gonna

1. Today, ____ meet two families with only children.

   a. we are going to

   b. we're gonna

2. First, ____ talk with Marion and Mark Carter.

   a. we are going to

   b. we're gonna

3. OK, next, ____ talk to the kids!

   a. I am going to

   b. I'm gonna

4. ____ speak to Marion and Mark's daughter, Tonia.

   a. I'm going to

   b. I'm gonna

5. And this winter, ____ go skiing in Europe.

   a. we are going to

   b. we're gonna

By using the example Choose the correct option.

Example

A: Most only children feel very different from their friends.

B: I don't agree. In most big cities, there are lots of only children!

Statements

1. Most only children (feel / don't feel) very different from their friends.
2. Only children (are / are not) more popular than children with siblings.
3. Only children (are / are not) more mature than children with siblings.
4. Many only children (are / are not) spoiled.
5. It's (good / not good) to be the youngest child in a family.
6. It's (good / not good) to be the oldest child in a family.
7. (All / Not all) children need siblings.
8. Many only children (have trouble / don't have trouble) making friends.
9. It's (fine / not responsible) to have more than one child.
10. Children (need / don't need) to learn how to enjoy being alone.