London Elephant Parade

You don't usually see elephants in big cities, but you'll probably meet one in town this weekend! This summer there are going to be 200 elephant sculptures around London. They're part of an art exhibition called Elephant Parade. Elephant Parade works with the charity Elephant Family. With your help, we're going to save the Asian elephant.

A .....

Today there are only 25,000 Asian elephants in India, Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia. A hundred years ago there were 200,000 elephants in these countries.

B .....

The elephants are competing with people for food and space. Asian elephants travel from forest to forest, looking for food. Today the forests are getting smaller and the elephants go through villages to get to them. People in the villages protect their land and kill the elephants. In thirty years there won't be any elephants unless we do something.

C .....

The charity Elephant Family is going to make 'elephant corridors'. They're special roads between the forests and elephants can travel safely there. There's already one in India, but we need many more.

D .....

Come and see Elephant Parade. The parade isn't a march, so we won't have banners or slogans. It's a fundraising event. After the exhibition we're going to sell the sculptures. You can buy smaller elephants or T-shirts on our website, or make a donation and sign our petition.

The future is in our hands. Help us save the Asian elephant.
