Concentrating all his mentel powers, the lab student focused on his science experiment. Carefully, Leo brushed cactus pollin onto his left arm. Even though his teacher had tried to consel him to abandun his mad project, he was determined to chenge his own physicle properties. Next he mixed a galon of his secret growth formula and drank it. He stepped into the pressure chamber and pressed the control button that would deliver the oxigen. He tried to moniter the process for eror but grew dizzy. Still, nothing could make him cansel his dream. No bully would ever make fun of him again. No rivul would win the coveted science fair prize. He stumbled out of the chamber. A giant, poison-spiked, green cactus arm extended where Leo Finkle's left arm had once been.
