Climate change and the ice caps

What is climate change? It's the changing temperature of the planet. The temperature always changes a little, (1) _____ climate change is getting worse. Scientists think humans are the reason.

We pollute the air too much and we cut down the rainforests. This is making the air warmer, and the ice caps are melting.

The ice caps are important (2) _____ the planet for many reasons. They keep the planet cool. The white ice sends the hot sunlight away from (3) _____ Earth, just like a mirror. When the ice melts, the seas will get warmer because it takes in the sunlight instead.

The ice caps also give animals a habitat to live in. (4) _____ animals like polar bears, seals, penguins and many more make their homes on the ice caps or on nearby islands. The ice caps are melting and sea levels are rising, so these animals are losing their habitats. If this (5) _____ change, the planet may lose these animals as well.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

People often talk about English as an international language. But why English? In the past, the British Empire spread English through trade because British merchants bought and sold things around the world. Over time, English became a global language. Also, English has simple grammar and its vocabulary is easy to pick up, so it is the main language in international trade, industry, finance and entertainment.

Did you know that today there are over 1.5 billion English speakers and millions of people take up the language every day? When we think of English, we usually think of the UK, but did you know that 67 countries have English as one of their official languages? Although the USA has the largest number of English speakers in the world, English isn't an official language there.

In fact, the USA hasn't got an official language. Despite having two official languages, Canada the third-largest English-speaking population, while Australia and New Zealand are next. Two other countries which use English as the main language are the Republic of Ireland and South Africa.

Since English is popular all around the world, speaking English is something you have in common with others wherever you go.
