Read the skill tip. Then read the article again. Match each sentence (1–6) with a hobby: card tricks, animation or hip-hop dancing.

You can try this at home!

Do you think it's difficult to start a new hobby? Think again! You don't need to find a teacher or go to a class. You can learn exciting new skills without leaving your bedroom. Here are three ideas for fun hobbies you can start learning at home, and some young people who love them.

What? Card tricks

How? Go online and search for 'learn card tricks'. There are some really good websites that show you how to do easy tricks. For example, you can learn to show people one card and then it suddenly changes into another. Some tricks are simple to learn, but others take time. You can also follow links to other websites that sell special trick cards.

Why? It's great for parties and everyone thinks card tricks are amazing!

Who? Henry Richardson does some amazing tricks and he hardly ever makes mistakes. He's probably learning some new ones right now! He's famous after being on the TV show 'America's Got Talent'. Watch the video of the show online!

What? Animation

How? You don't need famous actors to make a good film. Animation is the skill of making films on a computer, without real people. The computer program that you need isn't free, but it isn't too expensive and there's lots of information online to help you get started.

Why? It's a great hobby if you have lots of ideas and enjoy stories, but not for people who want results immediately.

Who? George Summers loves making films. He uses small toys as the characters in his films, and he's starting to develop his career as a young film-maker. His films include the prize-winning 'Just Some Morning Tea'. Watch it online to get some ideas.
