It was a wonderful thing, that Bank Account of Mama's. We were all so proud of it. It gave us such a warm (חמימה), secure feeling. No one else we knew had money in a big bank downtown (במרכז העיר). I remember when the Jensen family had to leave their house because they couldn't pay the rent (שכר דירה).

We children watched poor Mrs. Jensen's tears. She was so ashamed when they took away her furniture. This happened to people who do not have the pile of coins marked (מסומנים) "Landlord." Could this happen to us too?

I held onto Christine's hand tightly (בחוזקה).

"We have a bank account," She reassured (הרגיעה) me, and suddenly I could breathe again.
