Grayson: Theme Mrs. Glass

THEME

The theme of a literary work can be described as the message that the author is trying to communicate to the reader.

In some cases the theme is the "moral" of the story.
Many novels contain more than one important theme.

Each of the following is a theme of the memoir Grayson. In your own words, and using complete sentences, explain why each of these could be considered a theme of the story.
