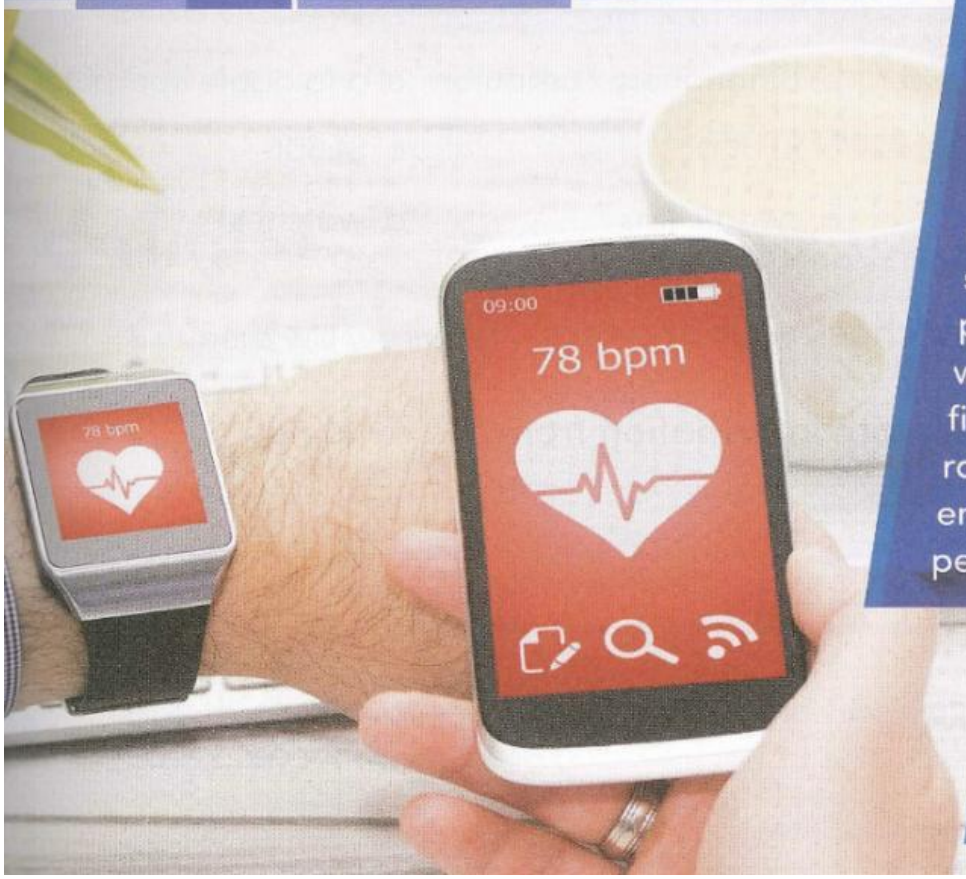
Can you buy Google Glass? Not right now. They are not available to the public. The first Google Glass sold for $1,500. Google only sells the product to certain types of businesses. Surgeons can use Google Glass to search for information while operating on patients. Engineers can use Google Glass to read directions and watch instructional videos while working on projects.

How do surgeons use Google Glass?



Google isn't the only company to create wearable devices. Several companies have come up with watches that users can answer phone calls, send text messages, and play games on. Other wearable devices track fitness activity and heart rates, or create an environment for peaceful sleep.

What wearable devices do you think will be created in the future?
