2X1 IN SANDYS

Everybody's Nightmare

Imagine you are driving in your car and stop to get gas. You pay with your card an it says: "DECLINED".

You never spend any money, so you think: "This has to be a mistake". You try it again: "DECLINED, NO FUNDS".

Then the bank tells you all your money is gone. Someone took it, and it was not you. What a nightmare, huh? That is exactly what happened to Sandy Patterson. a 40-year-old man from Denver.

Manicures and spa days [1]were charged to his bills.

But Sandy did not do it. His identity [2]was stolen from him.

His credit cards [3]were cloned, his money [4]was taken out from the bank accounts and he had nothing.

A woman from Florida decided to steal his identity. Fake IDs [5]were printed and Diana changed her name to Sandy. It sounds crazy, but it is more common than you think.

More than a million cases of identity theft [6]were reported last year.

Be careful who you share your information with, or you might be the next Sandy.
