

Practice

Activity: Read the quotes from the reading "A monster in the making" and "Mary's Journal" and tick the character each pronoun represents:

	Monster	Mary	Young man	Percy
" His name will be Dr. Victor Frankenstein," Mary declared confidently. " He will be a genius -but completely insane."
"Please stop asking me that. If I think of anything, I will share it with you."
"You're right", he said," This is the third morning I 've asked you that very same question."
Percy laughed. "It's a brilliant name! What about the monster? What will its name be?"
"Lord Byron has suggested we each write our own ghost story. I don't know if I can write a tale of horror. No ideas have come to mind yet."
"The pale young man looked excited and later horrified. He was frightened of the once-dead man, the creature he had brought back to life."
"They all think it has great potential. I told them the story would be very short, but Percy disagreed. He suggested writing a novel."				