Have you ever been to a place that took your _____ away? That's how I felt as I looked over the _____ of one of the largest waterfalls in the world, Iguazu Falls. I was there on the _____ of Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay with my sister on a backpacking holiday around South America to celebrate our graduation.

On the first day we visited the Brazilian side of the falls. _____ the weather was drizzly, we felt in _____ of the impressive panoramic views and enjoyed walking through the rainforest on well-marked _____. The next day, on the Argentine side, we took a jet boat trip around the base of the falls, a ride that got us close _____ to get sprayed with water.

Something beautiful but unexpected that we saw, was a huge group of wild green and yellow butterflies near a café in the park. We watched _____ as hundreds of them fluttered around.

Now that I have experienced the beauty of Iguazu, Victoria Falls is next on my list!
