

APPENDIX

A. LANGUAGE FACT: PHRASAL VERBS

Phrasal verbs are very common in English. They are made up of a verb and a particle or, sometimes, two particles. The particle often changes the meaning of the verb.

For example:

- I called Jen to see how she was.
(call = to telephone)
- They've called off the meeting.
(call off = to cancel)

In terms of word order, there are two main types of phrasal verb: separable and inseparable.

Inseparable

Some phrasal verbs cannot be separated. Even when there is an object pronoun, the verb and particle remain together.
E.g.

- Who looks after the baby when you're at work?
- Who looks after her when you're at work?

Examples:

- come across = to find something by chance.
- turn into = become.
- get over = recover from something.
- look into = investigate.

With two particles:

Phrasal verbs with two particles are also inseparable. Even if you use a pronoun, you put it after the particles.

E.g.

- Who came up with that idea?
(come up with = think of an idea or plan)

Separable

With separable phrasal verbs, the verb and particle can be apart or together.

E.g.CALL OFF

They've called the meeting off.

OR

They've called off the meeting.

AND

The meeting? They've called it off.

(Use an object pronoun)

More examples:

- Turn on (the TV)
- Turn off (the TV)
- Try on (put on clothes)
- Give back (return it to the person who gave it to you)
- Take back (return it to a store where you buy or borrow)
- Write down (take notes)
- Pick up (lift something from the floor)
