II.READING (10 POINTS)

PASSAGE 1:

Songdo is a big city. It's over six km2 and is on an artificial island in South Korea. But the streets of Songdo are very quiet and the air is clean because there are only one or two cars. The roofs of houses and offices are beautiful because there are plants and gardens. So why isn't this modern city crowded with people? Why isn't there a lot of traffic and air pollution? At the moment only 22,000 people live in Songdo, but about 65,000 people plan to live here in the future. That's because Songdo is a new and very 'intelligent' city. It's only ten years old and has state-of-the-art technology. For example, the Internet is in everything: in people's homes, their cars and in the roads.

At the centre of the city is a 'control centre'. It receives information from the Internet about buildings, traffic and the weather. With this information, the control centre can 'change' the city. For example, if there aren't people on a street at night, the control centre can switch the street lights off. If there are a lot of cars on one street, drivers receive information from the control centre. Songdo is called a 'smart city' and its architects think it is the city of the future.

Read the article about Songdo. Answer the questions with Yes, No or Don't know (because the information isn't in the article).

1. Is there a lot of traffic in Songdo?
2. Are there plants on the top of buildings?
3. Are there popular shopping areas in Songdo?
4. Are there any old parts of the city?
5. Is the Internet important in the city?
6. Are there people in the control centre?
7. Do car drivers send information to the control centre?
8. Do people like living in Songdo?
