~~brand name~~	labels	packaging	quality
imitation	logo	pirated

NICOLA: Jim! Look at this! They have Rayban sunglasses for only $25!

JIM: Nicola, those aren't real. Those are Raybams—the brand name (1.) is spelled wrong!

NICOLA: Oh. But what about these bottles of perfume? It's Chanel!

JIM: Can't you tell that those are fake? They have different _____ (2.) and _____ (3.).

NICOLA: Oh, look! Here are some CDs of the Rolling Stones. I love the Rolling Stones!

JIM: These CDs are _____ (4.). Someone just copied the covers on their scanner.

NICOLA: Well what about the shoes? These are Nikes, and they are really cheap!

JIM: You can tell that they are not Nikes because the _____ (5.) looks wrong . . . They are cheaper because the _____ (6.) is bad. They will probably fall apart in one week!

NICOLA: What about those jackets? They look like Hollister.

JIM: For $25? They are _____ (7.) Hollister. Nicola, everything here is fake!

LIVEWORKSHEETS

bill	equipment	fake	ink	scanner	technology

1. Printing presses, copiers, scanners, and magnifying glasses are different kinds of _____ used in counterfeiting.
2. Even new printing presses use _____ that is over 500 years old.
3. I want to be able to put this magazine photograph on my computer screen. I need a(n) _____.
4. Don't be fooled by that "Rolex" watch. It's cheap because it's _____.
5. I need change. Can I have four quarters for a one-dollar _____?
6. Professor Porter always corrected my papers with purple _____ since she didn't like red.

LIVEWORKSHEETS