The history of tea

British people drink 165 million cups of tea every day. But where did their favourite drink come from?

Legend says, the history of tea started in 2737 BC. Chinese emperor Shen Nung was sitting under a tree. His servant was boiling some water when a leaf fell into the water. Shen Nung decided to try the new drink. He liked it, and so, tea was born!

Is the story true? No one really knows. But we know that tea became a popular drink in China in the 7th century – and it became China's national drink. A writer named Lu Yu wrote an important book about tea in the 8th century which made tea drinking even more popular.

Tea didn't arrive in Europe until the 17th century. At this time, Holland was an important sea power. The Dutch were the first to bring tea to Europe from the island of Java in 1606. Tea became fashionable in Holland, but it was expensive, so only rich people had enough money to buy it.

Tea drinking didn't become popular in Britain until much later. A coffee house in the City of London was the first to serve tea in 1658. A few years later, the East India Company started importing tea from China, and tea became Britain's favourite drink – and this is still true today, hundreds of years later!

But tea is popular all over the world – people drink mint tea in North Africa, green tea in China and Japan, rooibos tea in South Africa and maté in South America. Some people drink tea with sugar, others drink it with sugar, honey, lemon or milk, and some people don't add anything at all to their cup of tea.

There are many different kinds of tea, and many ways to enjoy it, but people all around the world agree that tea is amazing.
