C. Read the article and answer two questions. Choose only one answer for each question

One of the main advantages of internet use for teens and children is access to information. The internet provides a wealth of knowledge at our fingertips, and it can be a valuable tool for learning and research. Additionally, the internet can help teens and children stay connected with friends and family, especially those who live far away.

However, there are also many disadvantages to internet use for teens and children. One of the biggest risks is cyberbullying, which can have serious emotional and psychological consequences. Additionally, the internet can be a breeding ground for fake news and misinformation, which can be harmful to young people who are still developing critical thinking skills. Finally, the internet can be addictive, and excessive use can lead to a host of problems, including poor academic performance and social isolation.

In conclusion, while the internet can be a valuable tool for teens and children, it is important to be aware of the risks and challenges that come with it. By using the internet responsibly and with caution, teens and children can enjoy the many benefits it has to offer.
