1. _____ is as much a low-cost way of traveling as it is a statement about your values. Carrying all you need around shows that you don't need a ton of stuff and that you are much more into the experience, the journey and the people you will meet.

2. _____ are cool because you don't need to worry about where to stay, and since they are normally done by car, they are relatively inexpensive.

3. When I was a kid my parents couldn't afford to stay in hotels or inns, so we used to _____ everywhere. My mom hated it, but we had a lot of fun.

4. _____ are a good alternative if you don't want to pay for a hotel room, but there is a lot less privacy and it is not as comfortable.

5. _____ are normally cheaper than hotels and if you get a place with a kitchen, you can also cook and save money on meals.

6. _____ is a great way to travel on a budget and meet new people all at once. It may feel strange to sleep on a stranger's sofa, but people all over the world enjoy and recommend the experience.

7. We have had our first _____ experience recently and it was amazing. We spent a week in Belgium and that family spent the same week at our place. It was lots of fun.

8. _____ are great because you stop at several different places. It takes longer to get to a destination, but it is cheaper than flying and you get to enjoy the beautiful landscapes as you move across the country.

GRAMMAR

When you travel to Chile, you can both visit the beach and see snow!

You can either start your journey with the cold from Valle Nevado or the hot sun from Viña del Mar.

But be careful, Spanish is the official language and you won't be able to communicate efficiently neither with English nor German.

If you are visiting Chile, be sure it is going to be not only incredible but also cheap.
