Good evening. I'm sure you all know, but the jobs that are the most popular today are likely to be different in the future. Young people will need different skills and knowledge than when we were young. I want to help you understand what is going to be important to teach all of your students. First of all, jobs in IT, in particular program design, are going to be very important. Children need to learn computer skills as early as possible. Jobs related to robots, especially where people design robots and create programs for them, will be very popular. Another thing to think about is that technology will help more people in the future create music and art. It will be much easier to become a musician or an artist than it is today. We should focus on helping children be creative now. Finally, engineering is going to be a very popular job. We should spend more time teaching math and physics. This will help today's students build our future robots, buildings and spaceships. Thank you for listening.

23. The speaker is there to talk about the jobs robots will do in the future. _____

24. She says children should learn computer skills as early as possible. _____

25. She says that more people will be able to create music and art in the future. _____
