An Unforgettable Mother's Day Celebration

Mother's Day was _____ and Lisa still had not thought of the ideal gift for her mother. While she was shopping one day, it suddenly dawned on her that a _____ she baked herself would be the perfect Mother's Day gift.

Lisa was extremely _____ about the idea as she had never baked a cake before. However, she was sure that as long as she followed the recipe exactly, she would be able to produce a _____ black forest cake.

While her mother was out, Lisa began her baking _____. As this was her first attempt, she was careful to follow the instructions closely. Finally, the cake _____ of flour, butter, eggs and sugar was ready for the oven. As she popped the baking tin into the oven, she felt _____ with anticipation. Exhausted by her effort, Lisa decided to take a short nap before her mother came back from work.

Later, Lisa was awakened from her sleep by the smell of something _____. To Lisa's horror, she had overslept by two hours! Her heart sank and feared when she saw the thick black mass in the oven.

Her mother had a good laugh when she heard what had happened. "It's all right, Lisa. It's the thought that counts!" she said. Although Lisa's cake did not turn out well, she had _____ helping her mother prepare dinner that night. On top of that, she promised her mother that she would pick up _____ dolls so that she could cook up a feast on the next Mother's Day.
