My Trip to Parangtritis Beach

Last Sunday, my family and I went to Parangtritis Beach for a short vacation. We decided to go there because we had not been to the beach for a long time. We left our house at around seven in the morning. The weather was bright and sunny, and the sky looked very clear. On the way, we listened to music and talked happily in the car. It took about two hours to reach the beach.

When we arrived, the beach was already crowded with visitors. The sound of the waves and the smell of the salty sea made me feel excited. First, we walked barefoot along the shoreline. The sand felt warm and soft under our feet. My little brother immediately started collecting seashells while I helped him find some beautiful ones. Everyone looked happy and relaxed enjoying the fresh morning air.

After that, my parents rented a small tent so we could rest in the shade. We took some photos together with the blue sea in the background. Then, my brother and I built a big sandcastle with a moat around it. It took a long time, but we were proud when it was finished. People walking by even stopped to look at our sandcastle and smiled. It was one of my favorite parts of the day.

Later, we bought some snacks from the food stalls near the beach. I ate grilled corn and drank fresh coconut water—it was delicious! We also rode on an ATV along the sand, which was very fun and a bit scary at the same time. In the afternoon, we sat together and watched the sunset. The orange and pink colors in the sky were so beautiful that we didn't want to leave. The view made the end of the day feel magical.

Finally, we packed our things and went home around six in the evening. We were all tired but very happy. It was one of the best family trips I have ever had. I will never forget that wonderful day at Parangtritis Beach. The memory of the waves and the sunset still makes me smile whenever I think about it.
