a. Advice for making friends _____

b. Other ways to meet people on the Internet_____

c. Making friends - the old way and the new way_____

d. Don't forget the real world_____

e. Using Internet websites to meet friends_____ __/3

Making friends in the 21st century

1 The traditional way to make new friends is by meeting people who are your friends' friends. In the 21st century, we have another option – we can use the Internet.

2 Websites like MySpace and Facebook all work in the same way. A friend emails you and invites you to join. You send a description of yourself, and then you can communicate with your friends.

3 There are also lots of discussion groups on the Internet. You can join one and communicate with people who have similar interests to you.

4 Decide which type of website you want to use and follow these guidelines. Always read other members' comments before you write. You can see which topics they are interested in and what style they write in. Don't give too much personal information about yourself, like your home address and telephone number.

5 The Internet is one way to make friends. Remember, you still need to go to real clubs and parties. You never know where you'll meet your next friend!

Hi everyone,

I'm Francesca. I'm 25, I'm single and I'm a music teacher in a big school. I really love my job and the students are great. The other teachers are nice too, but most of them are older than me. I'd really like to make new friends who are the same age as me.

I live with my colleague Meg. She's from the north of London, but we live in a small flat in the middle of the city. We often go out to the cinema or to concerts. Music is my main hobby, but I also love running. I run in the city parks almost every night.

I'm looking for friendship on this website- but who knows? Perhaps I will find someone special here. Is that you? Why not send me an email and introduce yourself?

Francesca

Hi Francesca,

My name's Anthony. I'm 28 and I'm single. I haven't got a job at the moment, but I'm studying Hotel Management. I live with my cousin Carlos in Brighton. Our house is behind the train station so it's quite noisy, but I like it!

You're a music teacher and I'm learning to play the guitar at the moment. I'm teaching myself so I'm making slow progress! What musical instruments do you play? And what sort of films and music do you like?

Write soon,

Anthony.
