

JOURNEY INTO THE MODERN WORLD

Channel 4 follows a group of Amish teenagers as they leave their homes in the USA for the first time to travel to Britain.

WHO ARE THE AMISH?

The Amish are a group of people in the USA who live very simply, often on farms, far away from big cities. They prefer the old-fashioned way of life and avoid using a lot of modern gadgets. They don't have cars and usually travel around by horse and carriage. Amish teenagers spend most of their time with their families. Girls do a lot of household chores, like cooking and cleaning, while the boys help their fathers with jobs outside.

MEET ANDREW MILLER

Andrew is 18. He's never used a computer, had a TV in his home or owned a mobile phone. He doesn't wear fashionable clothes or listen to rock music. He prefers hunting with his bow and arrow and ice-fishing. Andrew has lived in the state of Mississippi all his life and hasn't been to a big city before. He's never been to school either. His father taught him at home with his 12 brothers and sisters.

Along with four other Amish teenagers, Andrew is about to go on a journey to Britain which will change his life forever. Andrew's curious to find out what life in Britain is really like. 'I've read about the history of England in books, but I've heard terrible things about the English,' he says. When he goes back home, he will decide whether or not he wants to continue living in the Amish society.

THE TRIP

First, Andrew is going to stay in London. He'll stay with the family of a British teenager who is interested in fashion and rap music and likes playing video games. During the rest of his stay in Britain, Andrew will have the chance to visit a sports club, go to a music festival and try some traditional British sports.

Watch Channel 4 on Friday at 8pm to see how Andrew gets on!
