Asgardia - the space nation

Earth is home to millions of species, there is one that is dominant: humans. We are responsible for all the problems our planet: global warming, the ozone hole, endangered species, just to name a few.

2050 Earth will be really crowded, with 9 billion people living here. No wonder that when a group of scientists that they wanted to build a new nation in outer space, thousands of people got interested the idea. The project, called Asgardia is open to everybody and is free to join. Its mission is to build a 'peaceful society' in space. But before other countries Asgardia as a nation, it will need to have permanent population, a territory and a government. After Asgardians a democratic government, they will form a Court, a Ministry of Justice and other institutions.

Then the United Nations will vote on the new country.
