Men vs Women in sp

Men and women have often argued about how and why male and female athletes can have very different experiences as professional athletes: men get more pay, bigger audiences and TV channels prefer to show male sports events. So what are the differences? We decided to explore.

A Is it more exciting to watch male sportsmen because they perform better?

Some people have often argued that male sports are more exciting. They prefer to watch the men's matches at tennis tournaments like Wimbledon. They also say that the top male players are stronger, and the top players always perform well. They say women are not as strong and the top female players don't play as well as male players.

Stephanie Kovalchik, a researcher, studied this. She found that statistically men and women performed the same. But it is easier for top players

B Do people prefer to watch male sports to female sports?

In the past, women's sports events have often been cheaper and advertisers have made less money from advertising.

After the First World War in the UK, 20–30,000 people often watched the most successful women's football team of that period. Their games were hugely popular. But the Football Association stopped women playing in 1921. In the US today, the national women's football, or soccer team, is more popular than the men's. In 2015 the Women's World Cup had one of the biggest TV audiences ever in the US. While in the UK, a match between England and the Netherlands women's teams had an audience of 4 million, the highest ever audience for the football on Channel 4. In addition, more people often watch female sports events at the Olympics. Perhaps we

C Do women make less effort than men in sport?

Other people have suggested that female athletes don't work as hard as male ones, but science can prove this is wrong. When a female golfer hits a ball 200 metres, she uses 85% of her body strength, where a male golfer only uses 60%. Women aren't usually as strong as men, so they actually work harder! In the end, sport is for all, and female athletes have achieved so many great things. It is time to give sportswomen the same respect as sportsmen!
