For this week's blog, our reporters interviewed mountain biker Jack Smith.

Can you tell us how you got interested in mountain biking?

I've always been good at sports and I was given my first bike when I was four. Later, I started mountain biking in a forest near my house and I fell in love with it. If I wasn't here talking to you, I would be on my bike! I did my first long-distance bike ride five years ago. It was a challenge, but I really enjoyed it.

What's the furthest you have cycled?

Last summer I cycled from the south of England to the north of Scotland. One day I got soaked in a downpour. I should have taken more waterproof clothes! Some people invited me to have tea in their cottage. The Scottish people that I met were very generous and friendly to me.

What advice can you give to someone who wants to start mountain biking?

I suggest that you wear a helmet and start off slowly! You had better wear padded gloves too, or your hands might get sore. If you stay focused, you will overcome the challenges.

Have you ever been in the news?

An article about my UK trip was printed in a Scottish newspaper. I have also been interviewed for an online mountain bike magazine. A documentary about overcoming the odds was made about me too. It could be released next year.

What are your plans this month?

On Saturday I'm doing a bike ride to promote renewable energy projects and next month I'm taking part in a bike ride to raise money for the victims of flooding in a local town.
