Unit 4 Vocabulary B1

People in their work or their _____ have had disputes with their bosses. When people aren't happy with the _____ like their pay or work times, they start organizations like unions where they group together and make a list of _____that they would like from their bosses to improve their working environment.

If their bosses refuse to listen to the employees, the union might ask the workers to _____ where they will stop working until they get what they want. Workers will stop working and normally stand outside the workplace with signs listing their complaints, this is a type of _____ to highlight their arguments.

The strikes would normally be peaceful or _____ as people only want to get better working conditions. Any form of violence would result in both losing their jobs but also losing their freedoms as they could be put into jail.

Conditions Demands Labor Nonviolent Protest Strike

LIVEWORKSHEETS