Math the examples with the uses of "be going to" and "will"

"Be going to" is used for a present situation which points to the future (evidence in the present):	I'm going to marry her in three months.
"Be going to" is used when giving some commands:	They're going to have the baby in a month.
"Be going to" is used when someone has decided or intends to do something in the future (prior plan):	You're going to finish playing soon because it's late.
"Will" is used when we think or believe something about the future (prediction without evidence):	I'll close the door, don't worry!
"Will" is used in formal orders. It expresses the order as a definite future action:	You'll stop with this now!
"Will" is used when we decide to do something now (instant decision):	They are married! They will be parents soon.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Based on the uses or purposes of "be going to", choose the sentence that best fits each one of them:

PREDICTIONS (BASED ON EVIDENCE)	INTENTIONS
Ⓐ You are going to go to bed early tonight because you have to go to school tomorrow morning.	Ⓐ You are going to go to bed early tonight because you have to go to school tomorrow morning.
Ⓑ It is going to be a sunny day, look the blue sky and the sun is shinning!	Ⓑ It is going to be a sunny day, look the blue sky and the sun is shinning!
Ⓒ We are going to be the best doctors in this city.	Ⓒ We are going to be the best doctors in this city.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Read the sentences and select what is the use or purpose of "will" in each one of them:

1. Ok, we will meet at 5 p.m.

2. Tomorrow is the last game. He will play with his friends.

3. Those boxes look heavy. I will help you with them

4. I think my son will eat as soon as he arrives from school.

5. It's late so I will take a taxi.

6. Say yes!, I promise I'll be with you forever.

7. Thanks, I won't go to the cinema, I prefer to watch a movie at home.

LIVEWORKSHEETS