In 1066 the Normans made the last big invasion of Britain. These invaders came from France and were led by Duke William of Normandy. To go to Sussex, the Normans had to build ships and then they filled them with provisions, horses and even parts of wooden forts. They were going to put them together when they had landed in England. William arrived in Sussex with knights, archers and carpenters. Their weapons were bows, arrows, swords and shields. At that time the Saxons lived in England and their king was Harold. He decided not to give up his kingdom. In a great battle – the battle of Hastings – the Normans defeated Harold and the Saxons. Therefore William the Conqueror became King of England.
