Many years ago fishermen in Japan used birds to catch fish. This art of fishing is around one thousand years old. But today, fishing like this has become a sport. At night they sail their boats with three or four birds in one hand. They tie a piece of string tightly around the neck of each bird. This way they can't take up the fish they catch. When played as a sport, fishermen take up the fish they catch. The more fish your birds catch, you'll be the winner.

1. In Japan, some people catch fish with birds----------.

1) as a kind of sport 2) to give food to the birds

3) during the day 4) to practice art

2. They will win the game if----------.

1) Their boat is faster than others 2) they catch more dead fish

3) their birds catch more fish 4) their birds eat more fish

3. They tie a string around the neck of each bird to----------.

1) help it catch fish 2) keep the birds tightly close

3) let the fish not go down its throat 4) encourage it to catch fish
