September 11 attacks

In 2001, one of the most terrible events in modern history happened, the attacks that took place in New York in which two planes crashed into the Twin Towers. More than 3,000 people died that day, and there were truly terrifying moments, including the collapse of the towers.

For years there has been speculation that the bloodiest attack in history was somehow known to the United States, although this theory has never been proven.

Every 9/11, Americans hold commemorative events for the worst attack against their democracy, and their values .
