
Drag and drop each part of the eye in the table below to its correct function. Use the diagram above to help you.

Aqueous humour	Cornea	Iris	Lens	Optic nerve
Pupil	Retina	Sclera	Vitreous humour

- Transparent layer of tissue at the front of the eye which allows light to enter _____
- Coloured part of the eye _____
- Opening in the middle of the iris through which light passes to enter the eye _____
- Sac of fluid which changes shape to allow images to be focused on the retina _____
- The tough white coat which protects the inner structures of the eye _____
- Changes light energy into electrical impulses to be sent to the brain _____
- Sends electrical impulses from the eye to the brain _____

- Clear fluid filling the space between the cornea and the lens _____

- Maintains the pressure in the eye _____