Write the name of the correct type of slide.

1._____ Use a title slide at the beginning of your presentation to introduce your topic.

2._____ Separates different sections of the same presentation.

3._____ Use this slide layout to show two columns of text and graphic content.

4._____ Similar to the Two Content slide layout, but this slide type also includes a heading text box over each type of content. Use this type of slide layout to compare two types of the same content type (for example, two different charts).

5._____ The default slide layout and the most commonly used slide layout

6._____ A blank slide layout is often used when a picture or other graphic object needs no further information.

7._____ Contains two columns for text and content. The left column contains placeholders for text. The right column contains placeholders for images and illustrations.

8._____ Use this slide layout if you want to place only a title on the page, rather than a title and subtitle. The area below the title is blank so that other content (such as clip art, WordArt, pictures, or charts) can be added as needed.

9._____ This slide layout is similar to the Content with Caption slide layout. The left side contains a placeholder for text and the right side contains a placeholder for a picture that is stored on your computer or cloud account.
