1. Therefore, the argument is that universities want to ensure that their students are going to find the best jobs to ensure that this financial investment is worthwhile.

2. To conclude, although I acknowledge that many people feel that the main aim of universities is to help graduates find high-level careers, I believe that there are more significant advantages brought by obtaining university qualifications.

3. The world is a very competitive place, and as a result, all countries need educated citizens in order to compete and prosper.

4. While some people are of the opinion that the only purpose of a university degree is to improve job prospects, I think the students, and the world in general, benefit in much broader ways.

5. In addition, society will gain from the contribution that graduates make to the economy.

6. In contrast, I would argue that there are other benefits that need to be considered.

7. The primary function of a further education is a topic of debate.

8. Therefore, their maturity and confidence will grow, enabling them to live more fulfilling lives.

9. It is also believed that undergraduates pay high tuition fees in order to study.

10. This is primarily because the independence of living away from home helps students develop their social skills and improve as people.

11. There is a common belief that the main aim of going to university is to secure a high position at work.

12. To begin, some people believe that attending university is one of the most effective ways to do this, as it helps increase graduates' attractiveness to potential employers.

13. If some applicants for a job have relevant degrees, but others do not, those with higher qualifications will be shortlisted for the position.

14. Many young adults, for instance, will have to leave their families, live in halls of residence and meet new friends.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS