We were running late to perform at the concert last week, but we could finally make it. We could listen to this famous rap singer everybody had been talking about but I didn't like him. I couldn't figure out what he was saying.

We did pretty well ourselves, we could play flawlessly and although my sister thought she couldn't do it she sang quite well.

Our manager quite frankly thinks we can sing better than the rap singer.

Well, I can't sing but my sister can do it and I can play the guitar.

It is a bummer that these days people prefer those who can't truly sing or play any instrument. Those are the ones who can make a profit today.

LIVEWORKSHEETS