_____ / 7 (1 point each)

E Circle the correct answers.

Some / No / Any people buy things in different ways. We found that shopping online is an activity that [1]many / no / none people do from work. Do your coworkers do it?

During the lunch break, people surf the net at their desk on their laptop. They look for [2]some / all / none new clothes or a book. They don't like wasting time in a line at the checkout of the grocery store or department store. We also learned that [3]none / many / a, but not all, men buy jewelry online for their partners. How [4]some / all / many people do you think do their grocery shopping from their computer at work? We found 100% do it, so that's [5]all / none / a of them! They don't go online at home. They prefer to use their lunch break to buy [6]none / some / all the things they want online. They save a lot of money this way! I think this idea is pretty cool, so I'm going to look out for [7]all / some a new shoes on a new shopping website this weekend.

When I went to the store last weekend [8]many / a / none of the shoes I saw were the right size for me! Maybe I'll get lucky online!

Volunteering! Why not?

Chad says:

Why not consider doing something different this summer? You're not going to get rich financially doing this, but this experience will make you richer in many other ways.

Volunteering in South America gives you the chance to travel around some truly amazing places or across 12 different countries without spending a fortune. I traveled through the jungle and over the mountains and only spent about $100 a month. It's difficult to say which place was the most interesting, but one of them that I remember very well was volunteering in Santa Cruz at a center that helps kids of all ages – from babies to young adults – to learn about Bolivian culture and music because the city has no cultural center. I helped the director, Gabriela, do the housework, serve lunch and give English lessons every day. We also went shopping every day to buy the cheap food on sale but there wasn't much. I loved it, but they need more volunteers to go and help them. Most of all, they need more dishes for the 91 kids, and more food to feed them all.

I'm going to go back in the spring. If you want an interesting vacation, and you don't want to spend a lot of money next summer, I really suggest volunteering! And why not go and help Gabriela? You'll find a welcoming place and fantastic kids!
