Read the following text carefully!

One bright morning, Frog was walking on the banks of a lake. Suddenly, it heard a shout. It jumped to the lakeside and saw a boy in the water. When the boy saw the frog, he waved his arms and shouted, "Frog, please help me! I will drown."

Frog asked the boy to stay calm. It said, "Son, don't panic! I'll get you out of the water." Then, it leapt into the water and swam towards the boy. "Please hold my back tightly. I'll bring you ashore."

The boy did what Frog said whilst noticing how Frog swam. He imitated the movement of Frog's hind legs. Frog felt the boy loosen his grip and shouted, "Watch out! Keep holding my back tightly. Otherwise, you will drown."

The boy replied, "Don't worry, Frog. I am learning how to swim from you. I feel I can swim."

Soon, the boy and Frog arrived ashore. Frog looked at the boy and smiled, "Clever boy! You learn so fast."

"Thank you, Frog. You have taught me a very valuable lesson. From now, I won't be afraid of water and I name the way you swim 'the frog stroke'," the boy said. Since then, people learnt to swim the frog stroke from the start.
