Oliver: Hey, how's Iceland?

Sophie: I love it.

O: Oh, what a surprise!

S: It is actually. I don't normally like camping!

O: If I had the opportunity to visit places like that, (1) _____ !

S: What's the matter with you today, Ollie?

O: Ah, nothing really.

S: (2) _____ , I'll just keep asking.

O: Hmm. Yesterday, you were so excited, you didn't ask about my exam!

S: Oh, Ollie! I'm so sorry. You're more important to me than camping and volcanoes!

O: Well, it doesn't always feel like it.

S: If I promise to travel less, (3) _____ ?

O: No. Because you won't travel less. You love it. And if you travelled less because of me, (4) _____. So it's not an option.

*

O: Well, anyway. Have you been near that volcano? What's its name?

S: (5) _____ , I wouldn't be able to say it, I don't think. Wait, I can't say it unless I read it – Eyjafjallajökull. There are about 30 active volcanoes in Iceland; the eruption in 2010 of Eyja... of that volcano really wasn't so serious. (6) _____ , we wouldn't have heard much about it. There's a bigger volcano near it – with a shorter name too – Katla. I've been to see that. The landscape here's awesome. You can't imagine what it's like.

O: No? Well, I'll never go (7) _____ .

S: Darling, please...
