Jessica Fagan has been caving since she was very young. She learnt many of her caving _____(1) from her father, Joey , an experienced caver. Today, Jessica and her fellow Girl Scout cavers have decided to _____(2) into a difficult cave in the hills of Virginia.

To get access to the cave , the girls use ropes to gently lower themselves through the cave entrance. Once _____(3) , the girls continue on through the tunnels. Sometimes the only _____(4) the girls have is to squeeze their way through the _____(5)passages on their hands, and knees. It can be frightening experience, which is why Jessica feels that _____(6) , not strength , is the main requirement for being a caver. Eventually the girls arrive at a(n) _____(7) 18-metre waterfall, a(n) _____(8) sight at the end of their long journey.
