Last week, my family planned a trip to Japan. My uncle sent us an email to invite us, and my father quickly sent a reply. We were excited about our flight, but my mother reminded us to stay safe on the road before we leave.

On the way to the airport, my little brother wanted to cross the road alone. My father told him to stop and wait at the traffic light. We used the zebra crossing to cross the road safely. The cars stopped when the light turned red.

My father explained that road safety is very important. We must always look left and right before crossing. When we follow the rules, we stay safe and enjoy our trip without problems.
