- Read the passage, then answer the questions below:

To teenage Saudis, spending comes naturally

Teenagers in Saudi Arabia spend most of their money on phones, cars, handbags and fashionable clothes in an attempt to fit into a better social circle, stretching their resources.

It is believed that Saudi teenagers spend a lot of money. Most of their money comes from their parents. In a survey done by a group of university students, teenagers seem to be spending so much money and not managing to save a lot.

The survey revealed that there is a wide difference in spending habits between genders; girls outspent boys on clothing and cosmetics, while boys spent more on electronics. (Arab News, April 27, 2015)
